Experiance and Capabilities

Do you trust your current provider to offer consistency and reliability?

What relative job experience does your service provider bring to the table to ensure your project will go smoothly and not end up costing you and your client time and money?

Direct Push Analytical Corp. has been in business since 1996, providing services in over 20 states, completing over 2000 jobs. We did not just start yesterday and we plan on being around for a long time! Point being that there are only a handful of current Geoprobe companies that have been around for 11 or more years and experiance does count.

Does your current provider manage and train from the top down or are you holding your breath and taking a chance with your project based upon whether they send out the good guy or a newbie?

The owner (and an operator!) of Direct Push Analytical Corp. is a former environmental consultant and Major Oil Company environmental manager who has a “great understanding of consultants needs” (based upon our customer surveys) and this background, insight, and philosophy is shared with all of our employees. As a matter of fact, all of our current operators have environmental industry experiance which was gained prior to operating a Geoprobe.

Do you find your schedule or scope of work changes quickly and your current provider is not flexible?

Direct Push Analytical Corp. has vast resources and multiple operators and multiple Geoprobes for use on your projects at any moment’s notice. We are more than a “one man show” operating out of a garage with limited experiance or flexibility. Furthermore, the owner of Direct Push Analytical Corp. has been in the environmental industry for 20 years, working with and managing others in both front line and staff positions. As such, he has developed an extensive network of related professionals and/or service companies which are available to assist you on your projects as needed.
